

Learning to Love

Half-way through the Living Tantra training and the power of the ongoing circle that is such a feature of the training group, is evident. A Living Tantra training group is for those who have a deep commitment to their own growth and are drawn to the path of tantra. It is like a monk's initiation where he says, "yes I mean it, I join the flow of this river".

I'd like to share with you some of what I've been reflecting on since our last training weekend in February.

As one participant observed at the end of the last workshop "we've been totally naked with our clothes on". We'd been stripped naked of our preconceptions, concepts, all that holds us back from that natural state of being that flows when we just let ourselves be who we really are. We include our selves in ourself. That sounds funny but generally we throw out lots of parts as unacceptable, and lay dormant other parts because we didn't recognise them as part of us. During the training we develop a willingness to step into every part imaginable to see what it has to offer us. This gives us clarity, choice, fullness and inclusion; the ultimate sense of being connected - because in connecting totally with ourselves we ARE all one.

There is a choice in nakedness and transparency. Included in that nakedness is: sensitivity, vulnerability, empathy, wisdom. And we have permission from ourselves to be whole, and in that self love, comes an ease and naturalness that allows life to flow and dance. This willingness to become more and more naked with ourselves and with each other, regardless of whether we have our clothes on, is the foundation of Living Tantra, Meetings Without Masks and all the workshops. The place we are seeking, that is so profoundly fulfilling when we find it, is the state where

Living Tantra Training

starts 29 - 31 May, 2010 Canterbury, Kent
pre-requisite: Living Tantra 1

After completing Living Tantra 1, you may wish to join the training group, which makes a commitment to the whole Living Tantra series (Four workshops in total) and for the 3-day seminars that come in between. The added support and commitment that are so much a part of the training group gives a powerful experience in which to learn about authentic relationships as well as honouring the individuality and the masculine and feminine energy in each individual. Ask for the leaflet detailing the training. People who have completed Body, Heart & Soul 1 with me are also welcome to join this training.

I can be me, you can be you, and we see each other transparently.

What I see, both looking back on my own journey and looking at this current training, is how much this work provides a basis for learning about all kinds of relationships. We learn & explore how to be in relationship, how to say what we want and don't want, to set boundaries, to express our joys and pains and above all, to keep being there, authentically, through it all, without threatening to walk out, sulk, or cut off from the relationship. It's a way of learning how to be in a committed relationship because the training group makes a commitment to each other to be there for 18 months. It is powerful medicine in learning to love and it is a learning that is for everyone.

If you'd like to be a part of the next training group, you can join Living Tantra 1, 2- 9 April or if you have already completed Living Tantra 1 you can join the first training seminar in May 2010. Call to talk with me about it if you are interested. (020-8123 9831)

Inviting Intimacy

1 - 3 May, Canterbury, Kent

Intimacy, while sometimes hard to find or maintain, is what we yearn for. Intimacy is also the doorway to meaningful connections and loving relationships. The workshop invites you to find the courage to be true to yourself and to feel into another person. It will encourage you not to shut down, but learn to open in consciousness and to shed the limiting beliefs you hold. Inviting Intimacy is a journey of growing compassion and care, for yourself and others, opening to all your feelings while trusting that you are greater than your wounds; you are growing and the past doesn't need to limit or confine you.

Start time: 10.30am, Sat. End: 4pm Mon.
